

A FREE RESET FROM DONTTEXTTHEMTONIGHT.COM

The 10-Minute No-Contact Emergency Reset

For the moment you almost text them.

You do not have to be strong for the whole night.

You only have to get through the next 10 minutes.

Keep this somewhere close. Open it at 1am.

Do not send the text yet.

Put the phone down.

Not forever. Not for the whole day.

Just for 10 minutes.

You are allowed to miss them.

You are allowed to feel panicked.

You are allowed to want answers.

But you do not have to make a decision from the most emotional part of the night.

Before you text them, give yourself 10 minutes. Not to convince yourself that you do not care. Not to pretend you are fine. Not to shame yourself for wanting contact. Just to pause.

Because the text you want to send right now might not be the text you actually want to send tomorrow.

And sometimes the urge to text is not really about love.

Sometimes it is about anxiety.

Sometimes it is about loneliness.

Sometimes it is about wanting relief.

Sometimes it is about wanting proof that you still matter.

So before you send anything, pause here.

Take one breath. Then turn the page.

The 10-minute body reset

When your emotions are loud, your body usually needs care before your brain can think clearly. Do these steps before you make any decision.

1 Breathe before you explain.

Take 5 slow breaths. Inhale for 4 seconds. Hold for 2. Exhale for 6. Repeat 5 times.

You are not trying to become calm instantly. You are simply telling your body: I am safe enough to pause.

2 Drink water.

Get a glass of water. Drink it slowly. Do not check your phone while you do it.

3 Move your phone away.

Somewhere inconvenient. Across the room. In a drawer. Under a pillow. In another room.

The goal is not to punish yourself. The goal is to create space between the urge and the action.

4 Set a 10-minute timer.

During these 10 minutes, you are not allowed to send the text. You can cry. You can journal. You can pace. You can feel the feeling. But you do not send the text.

5 Say this out loud.

"I can want contact and still choose not to reach for it tonight."

Now turn the page and write the message there instead.

Text it here. Do not send it there.

Write the exact message you want to send them. Do not edit it. Do not make it mature. Do not make it pretty. Do not make it sound unbothered. This page can hold the messy version.

THE TEXT I WANT TO SEND

WHAT I SECRETLY HOPE THEY WILL SAY BACK

WHAT I AM AFRAID IT WILL MEAN IF THEY DO NOT REPLY

WHAT I NEED TONIGHT THAT I AM TRYING TO GET FROM THEM

Now read what you wrote. Ask yourself gently:

Am I trying to communicate something important — or am I trying to stop the discomfort I feel right now?

There is no wrong answer. But if the answer is relief, reassurance, closure, or proof that they still care, sending the text may not give you what you need.

Reality-check questions

Answer these before you send anything.

- 1 What happened the last time I reached out?
Did I feel calmer afterward, or did I feel more anxious?
- 2 Am I texting because I have something new to say — or because I want a different response this time?
- 3 If they reply coldly, ignore me, or give me mixed signals, how will I feel tomorrow?
- 4 Am I missing the real version of them, or the version I hoped they would become?
- 5 Would sending this text protect my peace, or reopen the wound?
- 6 What would I tell my best friend if they wanted to send this exact message?
- 7 Can this wait until tomorrow?

CIRCLE ONE YES / NO

If it can wait until tomorrow, let it wait.

You are not deleting your feelings. You are delaying the reaction.

That is not weakness. That is self-protection.

Your next 10 minutes

The timer may be finished now. The urge might still be there. That does not mean you failed. It means you are having a wave.

Waves rise. Waves peak. Waves pass.

Your job is not to never want to text them again. Your job is to not let one wave make the decision for you.

CHOOSE ONE THING TO DO NEXT

- | | |
|---|---|
| ☐ Take a shower | ☐ Put on music |
| ☐ Make tea | ☐ Brush your teeth |
| ☐ Put your phone in another room | ☐ Get into bed |
| ☐ Watch one comfort video | ☐ Text a friend instead |
| ☐ Go outside for 3 minutes | ☐ Mute their profile for tonight |
| ☐ Write another unsent message | ☐ Set another 10-minute timer |

TONIGHT, I CHOOSE

ONE SENTENCE I NEED TO REMEMBER

I can miss them and still not text them.

I can want closure and still choose peace.

I can feel the urge and not obey it.

I can get through the next 10 minutes.

ONE MORE THING

Need help getting through the next 30 days?

This reset was made for the emergency moment. The moment your hand is hovering over the send button. The moment you reread old messages. The moment your brain starts begging for one more conversation.

But no-contact is not just one moment.

It is mornings when you wake up and remember.

It is nights when the silence feels loud.

It is weekends when you almost make excuses.

It is the day they text "hey" like nothing happened.

Do Not Text Them Tonight

The 30-Day No-Contact Survival Kit for when your brain is begging for closure

- 30 days of no-contact prompts
- Reality-check worksheets
- Unsent text pages
- Closure exercises
- Nighttime spiral resets
- Reminders for the nights you almost break
- Social media checking detox
- "If they text you first" scripts

GET THE FULL 30-DAY SURVIVAL KIT

donttextthemtonight.com · instant digital download · $27

A GENTLE NOTE

This workbook is for reflection, emotional support, and self-guided journaling. It is not therapy, legal advice, or